CHARTER MEMBERS.*

ALLEN, JACOB STINER, Jr., (21), son of Jacob Stiner Allen, who enlisted on April 23, 1861, in the "Warren Guards" (Second North Carolina Volunteers, afterwards Company F, Twelfth North Carolina Regiment); Courier on staff of General R. E. Rodes; served throughout the entire war, and arrived at home from Appomattox on the 17th of April, 1865.

ANDREWS, ALEXANDER BOYD, Jr., (1), son of Captain Alexander Boyd Andrews. Captain Andrews entered the service in 1861, and on May 16, in that year, was commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company E, Ninth Regiment of North Carolina Troops (First North Carolina Cavalry); promoted to First Lieutenant September 23, 1861; promoted to Captain of Company B July 12, 1862; served with his regiment through many campaigns and battles, and was shot through the lungs in a cavalry fight in Madison County, Virginia, on the 22d of September, 1863.

*The figures after the names of members denote the numbers of their credentials, which the Camp has on file.

AYER, HENRY ("HAL") WILLIAM, (4), son of Lieutenant Henry William Ayer. Lieutenant Ayer first entered the service as a private in the "Thomasville Rifles," (afterwards Company B, Fourteenth North Carolina Regiment); on May 26th, 1861, was commissioned Second Lieutenant by Governor John W. Ellis; afterwards detailed by Governor Zebulon B. Vance to make a tour of the factories of the State for the purpose of ascertaining what operatives were subject to conscription; later entered the Twenty-eighth Regiment, without rank, and was killed at the Battle of Reams's Station, August 25, 1864.

CONN, DIXON VASS, (25), son of Sergeant Dixon Green Conn. Sergeant Conn enlisted in first company raised in Franklin County, North Carolina; on April 16, 1861, his company was officially accepted by Governor Ellis and became Company L, Fifth Volunteers, afterwards Fifteenth North Carolina Regiment; present at Battle of Dam No. 1; immediately thereafter promoted to First Sergeant; at Battle of Williamsburg (in reserve), and Seven Days Fight around Richmond; received five gun-shot wounds in the single Battle of Malvern Hill; his Company transferred to Thirty-second North Carolina Regiment and designated Company K therein; in January, 1863, was discharged on account of wounds; in the spring of 1864, joined naval forces at Charleston, South Carolina; served on steamer "Pee Dee" and in Naval Battalion at Drewry's Bluff; captured at Battle of Harper's Farm ("Green Plains") on April 6, 1865, and imprisoned at Point Lookout, Fortess Monroe, and Newport News.

DENSON, THOMAS COWAN, (17), son of Captain Claudius Baker Denson. Captain Denson commanded the "Confederate Grays" of Duplin County, being commissioned April 27, 1861; in 1862, entered Topographical Engineer Corps; afterwards commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company A, Second Regiment of Engineers; served in construction and defence of batteries on the Cape Fear and on the Sounds; in campaign under General Joseph E. Johnston and elsewhere; detached on April 8, 1865, to accompany General Bragg, and commanded Company on retreat to South Carolina; ordered home after surrenders of Lee and of Johnston.

DURHAM, BAXTER, (20), son of Columbus Durham, who enlisted on April 22, 1861, in Company E, Twelfth North Carolina Regiment, and served throughout the war; was in the battles of Cold Harbor, the Wilderness, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and many others; wounded four times.

HAYWOOD, MARSHALL DeLANCEY, (2), son of Surgeon Richard Bennehan Haywood. On January 20, 1862, Dr. Haywood was commissioned Surgeon, with the rank of Major, on the staff of Major-General James G. Martin, North Carolina State Troops, by Governor Henry T. Clark; later in that year was Senior Surgeon of North Carolina Troops by appointment from Governor Zebulon B. Vance; after each of the battles of Seven Pines, Malvern Hill, Spottsylvania Court-House, Cold Harbor, and Chancellorsville, was detailed for duty in Virginia; was one of the commissioners who surrendered the City of Raleigh, North Carolina, to Sherman's Army on the 13th of April, 1865.

HECK, WILLIAM HARRY, (5), son of Colonel Jonathan McGee Heck. Colonel Heck was commissioned by Governor Letcher, of Virginia, to raise a body of troops, which afterwards became the Thirty-first Virginia Regiment; at Rich Mountain, this regiment was defeated and captured by a superior force of United States troops, under General McClellan; after this, Colonel Heck was released on parole.

HILL, DANIEL HARVEY, (19), son of Lieutenant-General Daniel Harvey Hill. General Hill organized the first camp of instruction in North Carolina and was elected Colonel of the First North Carolina Regiment, which, by re-arrangement of troops, was placed between the Eleventh and Twelfth Regiments and known as the "Bethel Regiment;" while holding the rank of Colonel, he fought the first serious battle of the war, at Bethel; Brigadier-General, September, 1861; Major-General, March, 1862; Lieutenant-General, July, 1863; at Seven Pines his Division fought the battle almost alone and also took a prominent part in the battles of Cold Harbor and Malvern Hill; in the Maryland campaign his Division held McClellan's army in check all day, and gave Lee time to concentrate his forces at Sharpsburg; he and his Division figured conspicuously at Sharpsburg ("Antietam"); in 1863 he was sent to command a Corps in the Army of the West under General Bragg; took a prominent part in the Battle of Chicamauga; commanded a Corps when Johnston retreated from Georgia to North Carolina.

HINSDALE, SAMUEL JOHNSTON, (12), son of Colonel John Wetmore Hinsdale. Colonel Hinsdale entered the service in July, 1861, as Second Lieutenant on the staff of General

Theophilus H. Holmes, in Virginia; in 1862, he was transferred to the staff of General J. Johnston Pettigrew and served thereon as Adjutant-General until the Battle of Seven Pines; in the Seven Days Fight around Richmond, he acted as Adjutant-General on the staff of General Pender: after this was again on the staff of General Holmes; afterwards promoted to the rank of Colonel and placed in command of the Third Regiment of Junior Reserves (Seventy-second North Carolina); was present in the battles of Seven Pines, Malvern Hill, Mechanicsville, Cold Harbor, Frazier's Farm, Helena (Arkansas), Kinston, and Bentonsville; surrendered with the Army of General Joseph E. Johnston at High Point, North Carolina, April 26, 1865.

HUGHES, CHRISTOPHER MILLER (14), son of Lieutenant William Henry Hughes. Lieutenant Hughes entered the service as a private in "Grimes's Battery," of Portsmouth, Virginia, on the 20th of April, 1861, and about a year later became Sergeant; on June 11, 1864, was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant and transferred to Lee Battery, in Early's Corps; afterwards was officer in command of Cooper's Battery; participated in many battles and was severely wounded at Winchester; surrendered at Appomattox.

HUGHES, WILLIAM HENRY, Jr., (13), son of Lieutenant William Henry Hughes, above mentioned.

JOHNSON, CHARLES COUSINS, (18), son of Corporal Joseph Jackson Johnson. Corporal Johnson enlisted on April 7, 1862; assigned to Company C, Fifty-third North Carolina Regiment; for fourteen months was on detailed duty guarding prisoners at Danville, Virginia, and for fourteen months served on James River defences opposite Richmond; present at battles of Burgess's Mill, Hatcher's Run, and Petersburg; on March 25, 1865, captured at Petersburg and confined at Point Lookout until June 25, after close of hostilities.

KENDRICK, HUGH O'KEEFFE, (15), son of Captain William Bull Kendrick. Captain Kendrick served in the Fifteenth Alabama Regiment through all of Stonewall Jackson's operations in the Valley of Virginia; was in the battles around Richmond, at Cedar Mountain, Iuka, Missionary Ridge (wounded in two fights last mentioned); commanded picket line at Lookout Mountain, where he was captured but escaped; was in Vicksburg during the entire siege and was taken prisoner there.

McGEACHY, ROBERT SHERWOOD, M. D., (24), son of Sergeant Alexander McGeachy. Sergeant McGeachy enlisted as a private in Company G, Twenty-fourth North Carolina Regiment on June 14, 1861; promoted to Corporal, May 16, 1862; promoted to Sergeant, September 17, 1862; served in the various battles in which his regiment figured and was severely wounded towards the close of the war.

MONIE, JOHN MILLER, Jr., (3), son of Corporal John Miller Monie. Corporal Monie enlisted in Company H, Ninth North Carolina Regiment (First North Carolina Cavalry); served with his Regiment in the many battles in which it engaged from Sharpsburg ("Antietam") till March 30, 1865, when he was severely wounded and taken prisoner at Chamberlain's Run ("Five Forks"), near Dinwiddie Court-House, Virginia.

RIDDICK, WALLACE CARL, (23), son of Lieutenant Wiley Goodman Riddick. Lieutenant Riddick entered the service in December, 1861, as a member of Company I, Forty-first North Carolina Regiment (Third North Carolina Cavalry), and became First Sergeant; promoted to Second Lieutenant on June 24, 1863; was in battles of Washington (North Carolina), Kinston, Hanover Court-House, Cold Harbor, Drewry's Bluff, White Oak Swamp, Mechanicsville, Burgess's Mill, and the fights around Richmond and Petersburg during the last two years of the war; though present under Lee at Appomattox, he did not surrender, but made his way to General Joseph E. Johnston in North Caroilna; was one of the three men who first brought the news of Lee's surrender to Hillsborough, North Carolina; paroled in Raleigh after General Johnston's surrender; wounded at Washington, North Carolina.

STRONACH, JOHN BARTON, (6), son of Sergeant William Carter Stronach. Sergeant Stronach enlisted as a private in Company H, Forty-seventh North Carolina Regiment, on December 31, 1862; later promoted to Sergeant; served under General Roger A. Pryor in "Blackwater Campaign" near Suffolk, Virginia, in December, 1862; afterwards was in operations around Washington and New Bern, North Carolina; received shell wound in knee at Bristoe Station, October 14, 1863; present at the Wilderness; was at the "Horse-shoe" and in the "charge on the left" at Spottsylvania Court-House; at Gaines's Mill, Second Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Old Yellow Tavern, and Davis's Farm; shot through right shoulder and lung at Reams's Station, Virginia, August 25, 1864, and being permanently disabled was detailed as Clerk to the Medical Examining Board of Heth's Division; surrendered at Appomattox.

STRONACH VAN DALEN, (11), son of Alexander Baron Stronach, who enlisted on the 1st of June, 1864, in Company B, Thirteenth Battalion of North Carolina Artillery; present at the battles of Kinston, Bentonsville, etc.; paroled at Raleigh, North Carolina, on the 12th of May, 1865.

WATSON, WALTER LYNDALL, (16), son of Captain Henry Lyndall Watson. In April, 1861, Captain Watson entered the service as a private in the "Johnston Light Infantry," which was later made a part of the Fifth North Carolina Regiment; elected Second Lieutenant soon after enlistment; was in first battle of Manasas (first "Bull Run") and soon thereafter became drill-master at Camp Mangum, near Raleigh; later joined his old company and was again elected Lieutenant; present in the Valley Campaign and at Fredericksburg; captured at Winchester and confined in Fort Delaware; was elected Captain while in prison; wounded at Gettysburg and in the Valley Campaign; for a time was Acting Adjutant of Regiment, and on several occasions commanded Sharpshooters; survives war but recorded in Roster as "killed."

WHITAKER, DAVID SPIER, (9), son of Lieutenant Spier Whitaker. Lieutenant Whitaker entered the service as a member of the "Orange Light Infantry," which later formed a part of the "Bethel Regiment"; afterwards promoted to first Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Thirty-third North Carolina Regiment, Lane's Brigade, A. P. Hill's Division, Jackson's Corps; was present at the battles of Bethel, New Bern, Harper's Ferry, Sharpsburg ("Antietam"), Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court-House, Cold Harbor, Jones's Farm, Fuzzle's Mill, Gravelly Hill, Petersburg, and Appomattox; was captured at New Bern, and for three months held prisoner at Governor's Island, the Rip Raps, and Fort Delaware.
